Tech Fest

This August saw the fifth edition of BAP Showcase, a biannual Hong Kong exhibition for the AV, IT and lighting-control technologies industries. The two-day event was held at the Holiday Inn Golden Mile in Tsim Sha Tsui, where 12 booths displayed a wide range of audiovisual and lighting solutions. Among the products found in the hotel's 7,500 sqft ballroom were the CR Series Narrow Pixel LED Solution by Absen, the latest in mini LED technology from Aoto, the Dcentis Wireless Conference System by Bosch, and the Epson BrightLink EB-1485Fi, which is a large, high-def, interactive widescreen display for classroom and conference room applications. Other firms plying their wares included Lutron, NEC, Panasonic, Poly, Reach, Sony and TeamMate.

Ready, Set, Work

The catchily named DV401 E-Media is an "all-in-one" modular workstation by Italian office-furniture makers DVO. Designed by compatriot Antonio Morello, the unit has a back panel on which a large PC screen can be mounted, and a central column that conceals all wires and cables. It can accommodate up to three persons sat on barrel-shaped stools. The worktop height can be set at either 74 cm, for seated use, or 107 cm, for standing. If two units are erected back-to-back, shelves can be installed at the point where the workstations are conjoined. The product is made of metal and melamine, and is available in a number of colours: white, light grey, walnut, light oak, dark oak, tobacco oak, amber, and black matt. "DV401 E-Media is easy to assemble and use," reads the press release. "On demand, DVO can also supply all the hardware and software components."

Brit Pack

Among the many items on show at the London Design Festival last month were a couple of new products by British furniture designer Daniel Schofield. Schemed for compatriot manufacturers Ercol was a range of occasional tables. Tenon is crafted from pale, natural wood, has a sculptural quality, and comes in two guises: coffee table and lamp table. Ore is a round side-table hewn from a darker shade of timber (walnut), and has a cast iron single-column stand. Designed for British furniture makers Hayche is the Backer Chair. It has a classical profile and elegant curves. It comes in natural oak, or stained oak in burgundy, blue and black. This is the first time Schofield has collaborated with these two British firms. London Design Festival was held at a number of locations across the capital, and ran from 14 to 22 September.
